SUM IS ADEQUATE, GEORGIANS ASSERT

Tarver Expected To Ask Incorporation of Fund in Agricultural Department Supply Bill.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—After conferring today with Georgia delegation members, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced approval of a supplemental estimate of $480,000 for combating ravages of the screw worm in the southeastern states.

Previously members of the state congressional group had received assurances from Acting Director of the Budget Daniel W. Bell that he would approve any recommendation for funds made by the agricultural department head, which means that the way is now open for action by the house appropriations committee.

The sum approved by Secretary Wallace was declared by Georgia members to be entirely adequate to meet the needs of the situation, not only in Georgia, but in other states of the region where screw worm infestation has proved a serious threat to the livestock industry.

Culminating the vigorous campaign waged by The Constitution to aid livestock growers of the state, the action of the department head in approving the liberal estimate was hailed by delegation members as a major accomplishment in the campaign to bring the pest under control. The funds, as soon as appropriated, will be used in carrying on an intensive education campaign through the states affected.

New Oil Measure Is Passed by Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The senate today passed the Connally bill prohibiting the transportation of "contraband" oil in interstate commerce. The measure now goes to the house.

WEISS BODY FOUND IN SHALLOW CREEK IN PENNSYLVANIA

Member of 'Tri-State' Gang Identifies Remains as Those of Kidnaped and Slain Victim

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 22.—(AP)—In a grim, iron-weighted bundle, dragged up from the muddy bottom of Nesheany creek, authorities today found the end of a three-month hunt—the bullet-marked body of William Weiss, reputed kidnap victim of the notorious "tri-state" gang.

Wrapped in blankets bound with wire, the body of the night-life character, "snatched" from outside his suburban home last October, was brought up with grappling ropes from the shallow stream just northeast of Philadelphia.

An hour later, Martin Farrell, member of the gang blamed for the kidnapping, identified the mud-covered corpse as that of the reputedly wealthy suburbanite, whose abduction baffled authorities for more than two months before they trailed the Robert Maas mob to earth.

"That's that Bill Weiss," he muttered, when police Superintendent Joseph A. Lestrang questioned him, standing on the small iron bridge under which the body was discovered after two days of grappling in snow, rain, fog and floating ice cakes.

Farrell and the other two taken in New York—Marie McKeever, "girl friend" of Maas, and Edwin (Bones) Gale, fugitive from a Georgia chain gang—were brought down to Philadelphia yesterday. Charges in connection with the Weiss slaying and with the kidnapping of the Weiss child.

Another concession gained by the group, including Representative Martin Dies, Democrat, Texas, was for the striking out of the provision that violators of rules and regulations issued by the Federal Bureau of Investigation would be guilty of a felony and subject to a penalty of two years in prison, a $5,000 fine or both.

Poison Slayer of Baby Committed to Asylum

Mrs. Ethel Peoples, who administered a fatal dose of poison to her infant daughter last April and then attempted suicide, was committed to the state hospital for the insane Tuesday. Judge B. C. Gardner, presiding in the emergency division of Fulton superior court, directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty on the murder charge when Len G. Guilbeau, the woman's attorney, agreed that she should be sent to the asylum.

On a previous trial without a jury, Mrs. Peoples was given a life sentence, but was granted a new trial, projected by the defense as a "rehabilitation" effort.

After the evidence had been submitted, Judge Gardner summoned John H. Hudson, assistant solicitor, and Guilbeau, and expressing the opinion that the woman is mentally unbalanced, suggested the compromise, which was not protested by the state.

Under the court's order, Mrs. Peoples will be confined in the asylum until such time as the officials there decide that a cure has been effected. Having been found not guilty, Mrs. Peoples will be free when released from the asylum.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS RESPOND TO CAUCUS TO AVERT REVOLT

Action Taken To Keep 'Gag' Rule Foes in Line on Disputed Provisions of Relief Program.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Victorious in partially breaking down the projected "gag" rule procedure on the $480,000,000 relief program, house democrats insurgent tonight prepared to try to curb tomorrow the broad power granted President Roosevelt in legislation providing the fund.

Although they compromised with the revolvers at a party caucus, democratic leaders, nevertheless, claimed a victory in an agreement to preserve in a lump sum the $4,000,000,000 work-relief appropriation, to be distributed by the president at his discretion.

It was only after Speaker Byrns told the secret caucus late today that President Roosevelt had assured him that he (Mr. Roosevelt) and not Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, would allocate the fund that the compromise on procedure was reached.

It was agreed that three sections of the relief bill, granting President Roosevelt vast powers to make the program, would be thrown open to amendment on the floor.

The democrats then voted, 100 to 42, to support the "gag" rule, as it will be modified tomorrow, through amendments to be offered by Chairman O'Connor, Democrat, New York, of the rules committee.

Other phases of the measure thrown open to amendment include those which would give the president power to: Abolish, consolidate or redistribute any governmental agency; create new government agencies; delegate powers given him; guarantee loans to needy individuals; exercise right of eminent domain over personal and real property; and prescribe rules, the violation of which would make an offender a felon and subject to a penalty of two years in jail and a $5,000 fine.

With republicans united in a fight against the broad power delegated to the president in the measure, and with many in their own rank and file disoriented, the democratic chiefs called the caucus late today to lay out their majority to support the proposition.

The caucus step was taken when word was received by Speaker Byrns and Chairman Buchanan, Democrat, that President Roosevelt's committee, that President Roosevelt was dissatisfied over the failure to get the measure to a vote today. The chief executive called both to the White House for an explanation.

Approval Assured.
After the conference Byrns said he assured the president the rules committee would approve the procedure today. In fact, this had been done even while the House was meeting under way. However, the "gag" rule was approved only after the insurgent group had been assured that appropriations committee would submit certain amendments to the relief measure.

Besides obtaining four hours of debate on the rule and bill, the revolted received assurances that certain amendments to the $4,000,000,000 work-relief program relating to Philadelphia yesterday. Charges in connection with the Weiss slaying and with the kidnapping of the Weiss child.

Another concession gained by the group, including Representative Martin Dies, Democrat, Texas, was for the striking out of the provision that violators of rules and regulations issued by the Federal Bureau of Investigation would be guilty of a felony and subject to a penalty of two years in prison, a $5,000 fine or both.

Cold, Delayed 24 Hours, To Sweep on City Today

Mercury Drop to 20 Degrees, Accompanied by Rain, Snow, Sleet Forecast—Most of Deep South in Grip of Freezing Weather.

Temperature Range

The Atlanta temperature range Tuesday, as reported by the United States weather bureau at Candler field, follows:

Noon	41	7 p. m.	35
1 p. m.	42	8 p. m.	32
2 p. m.	43	9 p. m.	29
3 p. m.	44	10 p. m.	29
4 p. m.	44	11 p. m.	28
5 p. m.	44	Midnight	27
6 p. m.	38	1 a. m.	26

The severest cold wave of the season, sweeping eastward across the continent and leaving death, destruction and untold suffering in its wake, was due to descend upon Atlanta and the southeast early this morning, about 24 hours behind schedule.

A mercury drop to about 20 degrees here this morning was predicted, with rain, sleet and possibly snow to accompany the decline in temperature, according to Forecaster George W. Minding.

The highest today will be around the freezing mark. Clear but cold weather will follow the sleet and snow.

Far hovering around the 40-degree mark during most of Tuesday, the Atlanta mercury started sliding shortly after 5 o'clock in the afternoon, between 5 and 6 o'clock, when the thermometer stood at 38, a drop of six degrees was recorded, and from that time on hourly declines of from one to three degrees were registered. At 11 o'clock Tuesday night the mercury stood at 28 degrees and was still on the way down.

The cold wave was held back by a high pressure area centering over South Carolina, the area was dissipating Tuesday, however, and low temperatures pushed relentlessly eastward.

Freezing weather extended across the deep south to the western border of Georgia Tuesday, only a narrow strip along the eastern seaboard being exempt. Snow blanketed Louisiana, Committee action held the spotlight Tuesday as the legislature prepared for the close of its 10-day organization session tonight and the opening of the regular 60-day meeting Thursday morning, when the first of a series of measures sponsored by Governor Eugene Talmadge is slated for consideration by both houses.

Outstanding Tuesday was the action of the house committee on ways and means in voting unanimous approval of a chain store tax bill, intended to raise $300,000 annually; the income to be allocated for the first five years to the state highway department.

DEFENSE PROTESTS AS LADDER, CHISEL GO INTO RECORDS

Two Testify They Saw Bruno Near Sourland Home of Lindberghs Shortly Before Baby Was Stolen.

WOOD IN LADDER TRACED TO GERMAN

Phonograph Record of Condon's Imitating Ransom Taker's Voice To Be Offered by Defense.

By JOHN FERRIS.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Jersey's witnesses against Bruno Richard Hauptmann placed him near the scene of the Lindbergh baby kidnapping today and sought to trace the kidnap ladder to his hands.

It was a day of swiftly moving state's testimony, but not swift enough to stop a sudden defense attempt to cast doubt on the state's identification of Hauptmann as the ransom taker.

In an unexpected coup, Edward J. Reilly, chief of Hauptmann's counsel, brought out that a plaster cast was made of a footprint found in the Bronx cemetery where the $500,000 ransom changed hands.

Not a bit perturbed by the objections of Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, Reilly then moved to use reports on the cast and the word of the state's chief witness, John E. Condon, to show that it was not Hauptmann's footprint.

He let it be known also that he wants a phonograph record—the record that Federal Agent Thomas H. Sisk said had been made of Dr. John F. "Jafis" Condon's imitation of the ransom taker's voice.

Condon has testified that "John," the ransom taker of St. Raymond's cemetery, was Hauptmann.

State May Rest Today.
Hoping to close their case tomorrow, prosecutors later today began the tedious task of tracing the wood that allegedly was used in the kidnapping from the lumber mill to the Hauptmann attic.

They finally got the ladder into the evidence over defense objections, along with a chisel the state contends came from the accused man's own tool chest.

The prosecution says the broken, sectioned ladder was the instrument that kidnaped Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's first-born son; that Hauptmann, carrying the baby, fell from it when it splintered as he descended from the Hopewell nursery; that the baby was killed in the fall.

The first of the ladder-wood witnesses was Max Rauch, Hauptmann's landlord at the time of the kidnapping on March 1, 1932.

Rauch told how he missed a long board from the attic of the Bronx house at the time the carpenter was taken into custody; a board that the state contends was used in the construction of the ladder.

Trace Wood Shipment.
Other witnesses then traced a shipment of South Carolina pine from the southern planing mill to New York, where Hauptmann allegedly bought part of it late in December, 1931.

U. S. AND CANADA UNITE IN SEARCH FOR ALVIN KARPIS

Border Closely Watched After Stolen Car Is Found Abandoned in Michigan.

DETROIT, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Alvin Karpis, fast-fleeing public enemy No. 1, was being sought tonight along both sides of the United States-Canada boundary line, with Ontario provincial police joining Michigan state officers and department of justice agents in the chase.

The trail of Karpis and his quick-shooting companion, Harry Campbell, lost near Philadelphia after they shot their way from a police trap in Atlantic City Sunday, was believed picked up again today with the finding of a car near Monroe, Mich., which had been taken from an Allentown, Pa., plan, but the chief executive is understood to be agreeable to this.

Approval of the highway patrol—driver's license bill cleared by this committee.

Only Two Bills Held Up.
Senate committees also have agreed to report on the highway bill, which bills with the exception of the highway bill and the bill to divert $2,000,000 in accrued highway funds to pay past-due debts to school teachers and college pensioners.

The latter measure is being held by the committee on appropriations in the house, but the president of that body, Senator Charles D. McNary, of Oregon, may submit as a substitute a measure calling not only for diversion of the $2,000,000, but also for the diversion of $1,800,000 worth of western bonds to the railroad.

With the identity of the car established, department of justice agents joined state police and Monroe officers in a search for the stolen vehicle along the lake and Ontario police took up the task on the Canadian side.

Atlanta Girl Injured In Crash on Highway

Miss S. Verna Lasseter, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Turner Lasseter, of 900 North Highland avenue, and a student at South Georgia College, Statesboro, was seriously injured Tuesday afternoon when an automobile in which she was riding with four other students and a faculty member turned over three times on the Savannah highway near Brooklet.

Miss Lasseter, a sophomore at the college, was riding with Miss Helen McElveen, of Concord; Miss Grace McFarrell, of Statesboro; Alton Ellis, of Griffin; and Miss Mary Small, head of the college art department.

The automobile skidded on the slippery pavement and turned over three times. The Atlanta girl suffered a severe crash on her head and a possible skull fracture. Other members of the party escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Miss Lasseter was removed to the Statesboro hospital and an X-ray examination will be made this morning to determine if her skull is fractured.

The young woman was graduated in 1932 from Girls' high school, Atlanta, where she took a prominent part in student activities.

My Cookery News Notes

By RUTH CHAMBERS

Editor's Note: The writer is Ruth Chambers, staff member of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, recognized authority on cookery of all kinds, and especially meat cookery and the planning of meals around the meat course. Experimental cookery has developed a good deal of new information about cooking meat, which is contrary to old ideas. This series of articles will give our readers this new information in helpful form, and will also give a series of excellent recipes and suggestions for serving the meat course of the meal.

BEFORE PAYDAY

MEAL PLANNING

"What shall I have for dinner tonight? My food budget is getting low and I just can't think of a thing that sounds good and that is not expensive."

How many times have you moaned over the meal planning along toward the end of the month when you were trying to make the allowance for food stretch over a few more days?

That is the very time when some information is most welcome on the kinds of meat cuts which may be purchased for a song. It is wise and profitable to remember that in the carcass of every animal used for food there are certain cuts which are in great demand. These are the tender, so-called "choice" cuts, which, because of their texture and ease in cooking make up the greater part of the consumer demand. These cuts are naturally higher in price because of the greater demand for them, but there are the less-demanded cuts which offer many real bargains to the discerning shopper.

Proper Cooking Determines Tastiness.

If you are trying to buy most economically, you will find that you can provide your family with meals equally as tasty and just as nourishing by selecting these less-demanded cuts when economy is your watch word.

These are the parts of the animal which have a good amount of connective tissue, but they also are just full of flavor. Get to know these cuts, treat them right, and they will help dispel pre-payday blues!

Tenderizing Methods.

Because of the greater quantity of connective tissue in these less-demanded cuts, they need some special attention. This connective tissue must be made tender. There are several ways to accomplish this. Cooking in moist heat will do it. Pounding will help and so will the acid in sour cream and tomatoes. And grinding will make the cuts so tender that you can roast or broil the ground meat. That probably accounts for all the recipes for meat loaf.

Sometimes meat is treated to a double dose of tenderizing treatment as in this recipe for Sour Cream Swiss Steak.

The meat is first pounded, while the flour is being worked into it, then softened by acid when the sour cream or tomato juice is added. The acid reacts on the fibers and completes the job of making a luscious, tasty and tender meat dish.

Sour Cream Swiss Steak.

Two pounds round steak, 2 onions, 1-2 cup sour cream, 1-2 cup water, 1-4 cup butter, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, paprika, salt and pepper.

Cut meat into pieces for serving. Pound as much flour into each piece as possible. Dust with pepper, salt and paprika and brown on both sides in butter. Add sliced onion, water and cream to which grated cheese has been added. Cover the pan tightly and let simmer until the meat is tender, about one and one-half to two hours. Serve with boiled rice which makes a splendid combination with the gravy.

A very attractive pot roast may be made from the boned and rolled chuck of beef. If this is soaked for a few days in an acid solution made with a small amount of vinegar and water to cover, your family will experience a new taste thrill. The German cooks call this Sauer Braten. The gravy may be made with this sour liquid and it is delicious served over boiled potatoes.

Sauer Braten.

Four pounds beef, chuck, rump or round, salt and pepper, 1 onion, sliced; 3 bay leaves, 1 teaspoon peppercorns, vinegar and water, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-4 cup raisins, 4-6 ginger-snaps, 1 cup thick sour cream, if desired.

Sprinkle meat well with salt and pepper and rub in thoroughly. Place with onions, bay leaves and peppercorns in a deep earthen dish. Add water to vinegar (equal parts if vinegar is very strong) and salt and sugar to taste. Pour hot over meat, having enough liquid to cover. Cover dish well, put in cool place and let stand eight days.

Brown meat which has been well drained, in a little hot fat. Add some of the spiced vinegar, cover tightly and cook slowly, 3 hours or longer, until tender. Remove meat from liquid and strain liquid. Remove fat. Let one-fourth cup sugar melt in a heavy skillet. Add very gradually the strained liquid, then the raisins and ginger-snaps. Cook until thickened and smooth and pour while hot over the sliced meat. Add one cup thick sour cream to the gravy, if desired.

For the women who find it difficult to plan ahead and who may not want to soak the meat for several days, there is a short cut which will prove quite satisfactory if you prepare the following spiced pot-roast in which the vinegar is more concentrated. A perfectly delicious gravy may be made with this pot-roast by thickening the liquid after the meat has been removed to a hot platter, with ginger-snaps which have been rolled freely.

Spiced Pot-Roast.

Four pounds beef (rump, round or tip sirloin), 1-2 cup flour for dredging meat, lard for browning meat, 2 onions, 2 bay leaves, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 5 whole cloves, 1-2 cup vinegar.

Flour meat and sear on all sides in hot fat. Slice the onions and place them on top of meat. Add one-half cup hot water. Add vinegar and spices. If preferred, the spices may be put in cheese-cloth bag. Simmer for 3 hours, then thicken gravy.

JOHN BARTON PAYNE

IS SERIOUSLY ILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(P)—Judge John Barton Payne, 79, chairman of the American Red Cross, tonight was reported by his physician, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, to be gravely ill.

Judge Payne became ill from influenza and while he was under treatment appendicitis developed.

Part Owner of Hotel

Is Sued for Alimony

Mrs. Evelyn Parrott, of Memphis, filed suit in Fulton superior court Tuesday asking $50,000 permanent alimony of George Parrott, whose address is given as San Antonio, Texas, and praying for a receivership for the defendant's holdings in Piedmont Hotel Company and Parrott Properties, Inc., which companies are named as joint defendants.

Judge Virlyn B. Moore ordered that any monies due to Parrott from the two companies be held and that no stocks in his name be transferred pending further orders of the court. The suit is returnable at the May term of court.

Mrs. Parrott alleges that her husband's holdings in Piedmont Hotel Company and other properties of the estate of the late George W. Parrott are valued at at least $100,000 and that he receives $300 a month or more in dividends and profits. According to the petition the couple were married in January, 1929, but have been separated for about two years since that time, and they lived together in 1934 until August. Mrs. Parrott is the former Miss Evelyn Buchanan, of Memphis.

PUBLIC INDIFFERENCE

BLAMED FOR VIOLATIONS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 22.—(P)—Scott M. Loftin, president of the American Bar Association, tonight told the Committee of One Hundred the greatest obstacle in the way of law enforcement is the "indifference of our people."

Reviewing the huge annual toll exacted by criminals, Loftin, a Jacksonville (Fla.) attorney, said:

"The situation is not improving, and has been accentuated by the unemployment during the depression. Unless the American people destroy crime, crime will destroy our government and our people."

TWO NEGROES DIE

FOR KILLING ATHLETE

RAIFORD, Fla., Jan. 22.—(P)—Two negro youths paid with their lives today for the holdup murder of Carl Schuman, 25-year-old former University of Florida star football player. Thomas Jefferson, 22, and Fred Anderson, 24, were executed in the electric chair here a little more than two months after they attempted to hold up the athlete at the store he operated in Jacksonville. Schuman was killed as he was grappling with one of the intruders.

REFERENDUM VOTEDLegislature Approves Bill
To Place Issue Before Voters.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The Alabama legislature today checked the voters of the state the question of modification of the stringency of the 20-year-old dry law, in passing a bill providing for a three-fold vote on the question on February 26.

Over the vigorous and bitter opposition of Senator J. Miller Bonner, of Wilcox, whose every amendment was voted down, the senate by a vote of 23 to 2 approved the bill passed by the house last week 97 to 5.

Only the signature of Governor Bibb Graves was necessary to complete the legislation necessary to submit the controversial question to the voters for final settlement.

The bill as passed provides a vote on three questions as follows:

1. Shall Alabama's laws against the sale, manufacture and distribution of liquors be modified?

2. Shall the sale, manufacture and distribution of hard liquors be legalized in Alabama, "under strict state regulations, but under no conditions any saloons?"

Governor Graves whose platform announced before the senate vote that the house bill was satisfactory to him and would be signed when it reached his desk.

Perkins Sees Security Plan
As Doom to Life's HazardsCommittee Soon To Reveal Health Insurance,
Old Age Pension Findings, She Reports.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Self-assured and modestly garbed in black, Secretary Frances Perkins today testified that the administration's social security plan provided a "reasonable state" toward safeguarding against the "major hazards of life."

Explaining the program to the house ways and means committee, the first woman cabinet member said, extensions might be built upon the structure called for by the bill as the need arose.

She has made a specialty of social security problems and spoke after another authority on the subject, Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, reviewed the pending measure for members of the senate finance committee.

"We realize that this does not provide a hundred per cent panacea," Miss Perkins said, "but it seemed better to recommend a reasonable start rather than to take too big a plunge."

$2,000,000,000 Fund.

The secretary appeared after an administration expert had said the unemployment insurance plan would put a fund of $2,000,000,000 in the hands of the secretary of the treasury with which to stabilize business credit.

Edwin E. Witte, executive director of the economic security committee set up by President Roosevelt, said such use of the reserve fund built up by a pay roll tax was contemplated by the bill. The committee helped draft the proposals contained in the bill.

Secretary Perkins said health insurance was still a matter of study and a committee would be ready to report in a month or so.

"We have recommended that the age be fixed at 65 for old-age pensions because we realize that it has become very difficult for a man who is more than 65 to obtain a job," she said, adding this was true regardless of qualifications.

Both Witte and Wagner said that if the unemployment insurance bill proposed had been in operation during the 1920's it would have greatly reduced the effects of the depression.

They explained the bill called for a 3 per cent pay roll tax upon employers, eventually, but the levy until 1940, if business did not improve before that time, would be either 1 or 2 per cent.

Wagner said a study of family earnings in the United States, just completed, showed that in 1923, 8,000,000 families received less than $1,000 a year; that 16,000,000 families averaged less than $2,000 a year and that 20,000,000 families received less than $2,500 a year.

"At the same time," he said, "the 38,000 families at the top of the economic ladder received as much as the 11,000,000 families at the bottom."

"These citations throw into bold relief the reasons why fully half of the 7,000,000 Americans who are now over 65 years of age have been reduced to a state of bitter dependency."

Wagner said it was impossible to calculate the precise sums needed to maintain the old persons on standards of health and decency.

"But if we accept $40 per month per person as an immediate minimum goal, our 3,500,000 dependent old people need assistance to the extent of $1,680,000,000 per year. And this need will mount with alarming rapidity."

Joint Operation.

The measure provides that state and federal governments would contribute jointly to the upkeep of the aged, the maximum to be given by the federal government to be $15 a month, which must at least be matched by the states.

Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware, asked Wagner about the figures of the bill, which proposed a $300,000,000 contribution from the federal government for the old during the first year and $125,000,000 annually afterward.

Wagner said if appropriations were made for the 3,500,000 aged persons who were in need it would cost the federal government $675,000,000 a year.

"I'll go along with the senator if he wants to propose something more liberal than the bill calls for," Wagner told Hastings.

"I was just trying to find out the facts," Hastings replied.

MURDERER OF STAMPS
IS REPORTED SLAIN

WUHU, Anhwei Province, China, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The leader of the communist bandits who murdered Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stam, American missionaries, has paid for the crime with his life, according to word received here today from south Anhwei.

The leader, the reports said, whose name was Ching Weichow, was shot within the past two weeks by nationalist government troops, who have been attempting to drive the reds from the district.

Wounded, Ching Weichow was carried away by his troops and later died. The pursuing soldiers found the grave of the former leader, disinterred the body, decapitated it and nailed the head to a post in the market place as a warning against the perpetration of further outrages.

Annexation Measure
Would Add Six Miles

Proposal for annexation to the city of Atlanta of more than six square miles of territory on the north side of the city, would bring within the city limits not all of the Druid Hills section, but also Emory University, Brookwood Hills, a portion of Ormeau Park and other populous areas it was revealed Tuesday.

The Atlantic Steel Company and surrounding industrial territory is included in the proposed annexation area, a study of the paper revealed.

Councilman J. Frank Beck was author of the council resolution approved Monday asking that the general assembly pass an amendment to the city charter to effect this extension of the city limits. Council approved the paper without discussion.

The resolution seeks extension of city limits northward to include a territory bounded on the north by the Seaboard Air Line main line tracks, on the east by the Seaboard belt line, on the west by North Side drive and on the south by the present city limits. Population within the area is estimated at slightly less than 10,000.

Two other minor annexation proposals, one in Onewood Park, with an area of about one-half of a square mile and a population of 250 and the other straightening a yard line near Clark University, were also approved by council Monday.

President Rules Industrial Board Has Jurisdiction in Labor Disputes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today adjusted a controversy between his national labor relations board and newspaper publishers by ruling that the newspaper code industrial board possessed jurisdiction over labor disputes within the business.

Chairman Howard Davis, of the code authority, cancelled a call for a convention of daily newspaper publishers which was to have taken place in New York January 23.

Mr. Roosevelt intervened with a letter to Chairman Francis Biddle, of the national labor relations board. The letter adjusted the issue to the satisfaction of the publishers' code committee, of which Davis also is chairman.

Disagreement between publishers and the board arose over a labor dispute involving Dean S. Jennings, formerly an employee of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin. Publishers contended the board has no jurisdiction in the case and that it should have been handled by the adjustment board established by the newspaper code. Mr. Roosevelt's letter was as follows:

President's Letter.

"Hon. Francis Biddle,
"My Dear Mr. Chairman:
"It has come to my attention that out of a total number of approximately 500 different codes which have been approved and are now in effect a very small number—probably less than five—contain a provision for the consideration and final adjudication of complaints of violation of labor provisions. The existence of this provision in this handful of codes was due to the evolutionary process of code making during the first year of NRA. I understand that since those days no provision for final adjudication has entered into any of the later codes."

"It is, of course, clear to me that it is reasonable that some provision for appeal should be a part of government policy. Nevertheless, the fact that government has approved this provision in these few codes, makes it imperative that government should live up to the letter of the agreement as long as these codes remain in effect."

Principles Fixed.
"I, therefore, request that the national labor relations board conform to the following principles in cases arising under these few codes until such time as the codes themselves may be altered, either by executive action or by the passage of new laws."
"1. Whenever, in an approved code of fair competition, provision is made for the consideration and adjudication of complaints of violation of labor provisions of the code, and where a committee, board, or other tribunal has been established under the code to which an appeal can be taken and which is empowered to make a final and enforceable decision of such complaint, the national labor relations board will refuse to entertain any such complaint, or to review the record of a hearing thereon, or to take any other action thereon."

"2. Whenever a complaint shall be made to the national labor relations board that the tribunal of appeal established under an approved code of fair competition for the final adjudication of labor controversies has not been constituted or is not qualified in accordance with the requirements of such code, the national labor relations board may investigate the merits of such a complaint and submit its recommendations thereon to the president."
"3. Whenever, in the case of the type of code referred to in No. 1, a complaint shall be made to the national labor relations board by either party to a case before the tribunal of appeal that the decision of the tribunal of appeal is contrary to existing interpretations of the law and specifically of section 7A of the national industrial recovery act, the national labor relations board may, in its discretion, report to the president as to whether in its judgment the interpretations referred to are contrary to law."

"I am inclined to think that as a matter of practice these three rules cover the situation affecting these few special codes and I call your special attention to rule No. 3, which should serve to avoid conflicting interpretation of section 7A."
"Very sincerely yours,
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Biddle pointed out the president's outline of procedure would affect only the bituminous coal, petroleum and newspaper publishers boards set up by those industries to handle labor disputes. Other labor boards, such as those functioning in the automobile, steel and cotton textile industries are not affected because they were set up

Collins Says FERA Kept Schools Open

The federal emergency relief administration's gift of $1,000,000 saved scores of Georgia's schools from closing down during the past school year and the same help will be required this year to guarantee full length terms, State School Superintendent M. D. Collins informed the Georgia legislature in his annual report Tuesday.

In the report Superintendent Collins said:
"Just when the situation was getting beyond further endurance and many schools were about to be closed, we found it possible to enlist the help of the federal emergency relief administration and in 1933-34 the normal term was maintained through an allotment of more than $1,000,000 for this purpose." The report read: "The situation will be very little better this year and we have urged the continuation of this program by the federal government."

The state school department had planned to ask for annual appropriations of $5,500,000 for each of the years 1936 and 1937, but finally agreed to a figure of $4,000,000 for each year.

By the government rather than the industry. Biddle said the letter would have no effect on the board's decision in the Jennings case because the board had given its final decision and disposed of that case. It involved the resignation of the news writer from the San Francisco Call-Bulletin allegedly because of his employers' interference with his activities in the newspaper guild.

The labor relations board sustained the charges and recommended to NRA withdrawal of the publishers' Blue Eagle.

BROWN SEES "SURRENDER" IN PRESIDENT'S LETTER
NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Heywood Brown, president of the American Newspaper Guild, tonight described President Roosevelt's letter to the labor relations board as a surrender to the publishers "at the point of a wooden gun."

Asserting it was with "deep and bitter regret" that the newspaper guild learned that the labor relations board was to have no further function in the hearing of guild cases, Brown said:

"We feel that it is impossible to dodge the fact that the newspaper publishers have cracked down on the president of the United States and that Franklin D. Roosevelt has cracked up..."

The president's letter, Brown said, "means that the Jennings case becomes no more than a pressed flower for our memory book."

ATLANTA PLANT WINS '34 CHEVROLET TROPHY

DETROIT, Jan. 22.—The Atlanta plant of the Chevrolet Motor Company tonight received first place in the international safety contest sponsored by William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors Corporation. The Atlanta plant had no last-time accidents during 1934.

More than 5,000 Detroit safety supervisors and plant employees who had gathered in the Masonic Temple auditorium here to see the ceremonies applauded as S. D. Gallaher, manager of the Chevrolet plant in Atlanta, personally received the trophy from Mr. Knudsen. The trophy is an engraved silver plaque mounted on an ebony base, and becomes the permanent possession of the Atlanta plant. Mr. Knudsen complimented Mr. Gallaher on the fine record made.

Sixty-seven General Motors plants throughout the United States and Canada participated in the year's competition. The Fisher Body plant in Seattle also sharing first honors with Atlanta by having no last-time accidents in 1934. Mr. Knudsen inaugurated the contest last year to reduce the industrial accident toll and improve working conditions where possible.

"General Motors is spending vast sums to protect its workers by providing the best equipment and plant facilities possible," said Mr. Knudsen. "We made notable progress last year and will continue an active safety campaign in the future."

The Fisher Body plant in Atlanta received honorable mention in the Knudsen contest, and will be given a scroll for outstanding performance in accident prevention during 1934. John W. Roach is manager of the Atlanta Fisher plant.

$60,000 in Property

Changes Hands Here

Realty transfers involving property valued at more than $60,000 were reported Tuesday, residential, business and income properties being exchanged.

Continuing its program of expansion, the Gulf Refining Company purchased ground, 50 by 75 feet, adjoining its filling station at Hunter street and Central avenue from the Trust Company of Georgia for a cash consideration of $3,500. The deal was handled by Henry Robinson, of the Adams-Cases Company.

E. L. King, Atlanta businessman, traded an eight-unit apartment building at 451-5 Highland avenue, N. E., and a vacant lot on Fairview road to Mrs. Benjamin Z. Phillips in exchange for her two-story home at 1246 Ponce de Leon avenue, North, N. E.

Mr. Phillips is the widow of the late Benjamin Z. Phillips, attorney. The properties involved in the trade are valued at approximately $60,000. Titles of all the properties were examined and insured by the Atlanta Title & Trust Company.

Millican Will Urge Consolidation Bill

State Senator G. Everett Millican will introduce a bill for consolidation of Fulton and DeKalb county governments and the governments of the various municipalities—including Atlanta—within their borders, in the legislature, he stated Tuesday.

Council at its Monday session approved a resolution calling for such governmental merger and, whether or not the paper receives the formal approval of Mayor Key, it is expected that the measure will be given the legislature for its consideration.

Two other members of the Fulton-DeKalb delegations in the general assembly, Representatives Ralph Ramsey, of Fulton, and Paul Lindsay, of DeKalb, indicated Tuesday they favored the governmental consolidation move in principle, though they declined to commit themselves regarding details of the proposed plan.

ATLANTA, GA., JAN. 23, 1935.

COUNCIL ACTS SWIFTLY

Promise that the new city council will function efficiently and smoothly is found in the swift manner in which the 1935 budget was adopted at Monday's session.

There was a complete absence of the bickering and uncertainty that marked the two-and-a-half-month's long effort to adopt the budget a year ago.

Backed by Mayor Key's firm stand that the budget must be soundly balanced, the finance committee, under the leadership of Chairman Milam, prepared a sheet in which the expenditures are within the anticipated revenues for the year.

It was neither an easy nor a pleasant task, involving as it does an additional 5 per cent salary cut for all city employees, except those in the school department. There was no other way in which the budget could be balanced and public service continued on a basis that will safeguard the lives, health and property of the people of the city.

The budget submitted by the finance committee testifies to the ability and the earnest efforts of Chairman Milam. It will preserve the city's credit and assure that public service will be maintained on an effective basis.

The prompt and frictionless adoption of the budget by both branches of the council is gratifying indication that the functions of the legislative branch of the municipal government will be performed this year in a far more businesslike manner than has been the case so often in former years.

Mayor Key, Chairman Milam and the entire council are due the appreciation of the public for the earnest and skillful manner in which a difficult problem has been solved.

THE OKFENOKEE HIGHWAY

The proposed highway through the Okfenokee swamp, to be constructed by the federal bureau of good roads, would add a stretch of rare beauty and interest to the scenic highways of the country.

Scientists from all parts of the United States have explored the Okfenokee to study the unusual flora and fauna with which it abounds, much of which is to be found nowhere else in the country.

The swamp area in most of its extent still remains in its primitive state, despite the fact that the exploration into it, organized by The Constitution more than 60 years ago, has been followed by many others.

The Florida Everglades are world renowned for their beauty, but, while covering a larger area than the Okfenokee, do not compare with it in the riotous and intense loveliness of semi-tropical growths and the multiplicity and abundance of wild life and fish.

There is now under way a state-sponsored movement to convert the Everglades into a national park. The success of the movement seems to be assured, as it should be. There are more important reasons why the Okfenokee should be preserved by the federal government.

The new highway will go far toward attracting new attention to this rare area and should prove an important step toward its being made a permanent sanctuary for wild life, in which protection will also be given to the rare trees, shrubs and flowers with which it abounds.

Outside of the interesting nature of the proposed highway, it will serve a splendid purpose in furnishing a new short route from

The New Year.

A lady prophesies in Paris, who predicted the death of Dr. Dolfuss last January, now says that the end of the universal depression is in sight. It is slender encouragement, for after all she is but a soothsayer. Yet it is profoundly to be hoped that the lady is as correct in this prognosis as she was a year ago.

Many things have happened of late to show that the threat of war is not for the immediate future. There are menacing clouds, but the will to peace has prevailed once or twice on very critical occasions in Europe. Under ordinary circumstances, without a League of Nations sitting in Geneva, the planet of Jugoslavia against Hungary in connection with the murder of King Alexander would have resulted in war. No question about that. Now there was discussion and although the discussion waxed quite animated and even bitter at times, war was avoided. If the League did nothing else all the years of its existence but to prevent war, its existence is fully justified.

I learn on the very best of authority that Mr. Roosevelt has been deeply impressed with the functioning of the League machinery in this matter and that as a result, we may in the future look for a more harmonious and a closer co-operation between the United States government and the Geneva body. This would be a tremendous step in the right direction. The moral authority of America is unparalleled in the world today.

Assuming that the countries in which Waycross, Moultrie, Valdosta and Albany are located render service on a par with that in Glynn, there is no reason why the taxpayers of the latter county should have a greater load to carry. If Glynn county is receiving better and more extensive service the difference can be understood, but evidently Representative Brown does not consider that such a difference exists.

The variation in the cost of government in this group of counties is illustrative of even greater differences in other counties in the amount of return received by property owners for the taxes they pay. In many of the counties where the tax rates are the highest, governmental service is the poorest, while in some counties with low rates, economical and efficient direction of public affairs produces fine service.

There is no possible excuse for a taxpayer's dollar bringing a full dollar's worth of service in one county and, comparatively, far less service in another county.

The present system of county government in Georgia was devised to meet conditions of a century ago. It is entirely inadequate to function efficiently and economically under conditions existing today.

It is to correct the evils now existing, increasing as they do the expense of government administration and constituting a serious handicap to good service, that the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia is backing reforms that will simplify and put on a business basis the conduct of the public business by the county governments of the state.

As the result of the lack of uniformity in local government in Georgia, and the existence of hundreds of useless political subdivisions, the taxpayers of the state are shouldering a staggering burden. Much of this burden can be lifted if the general assembly will institute the reforms for which state-wide appeal is now being made.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

TRUCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—There has been a notable absence of public shouting back and forth between the recognized spokesmen for business and the New Deal during the last few weeks. The late fall firing from the business side has almost completely died away. The New Deal forces have been quiet also, except for such mild drats as the crooning co-ordinator, Donald Richberg, has aimed in a very general way.

This apparent truce is singular in view of the elaborate yawn emitted by the White House at the corrective suggestions of the late White Sulphur Springs business conference, but it is substantiated by the added fact that business did not seem to resent the yawn in the slightest.

There is really reason to believe that a mutual basis of better understanding has been worked out between the administration and business. And that, while it could hardly be called harmony, it is at least an encouraging co-operative effort.

PEACE

One explanation of it may be found in the belated story as to what really happened to the White Sulphur recommendations at the White House.

You may recall that the White House spokesman last indicated several weeks ago that the suggestions were still at the bottom of the pile of President Roosevelt's incoming mail. The fact appears to be that Mr. Roosevelt's read the recommendations almost in full in the New York Times the day after they were submitted. There was, therefore, no reason why he should go to the bottom of his letter file for them.

At least that explanation is current among the business spokesmen here and is considered sufficient by them. It is, in fact, the real reason why they did not feel hurt at the seeming slight paid them by Mr. Roosevelt's letter file.

Another reason is that the relief program which Mr. Roosevelt submitted to congress is a small beginning of what the White Sulphurites recommended, i. e., federal withdrawal from relief activities.

DISARMAMENT

More revealing is the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has superceded the White Sulphur contacts with the Dan Roper's commerce department business advisory and planning council.

It has been working more energetically of late at serious studies of New Deal agencies and talking over mutual problems with Mr. Roosevelt's men. It has been especially active in RFC, FERA and NRA. And it is composed of most of the same business leaders who attended the White Sulphur Springs meeting.

In view of this thoroughly laudable co-operation, the business spokesmen are inclined to be reconciled for the time being to New Deal necessities.

INTERNATIONAL

The international disarmament situation also seems to be slightly better.

The best informed state departmentalsists have data indicating that Britain, France and Italy are sincere, for once, in trying to get together. Britain and Italy appear to have eased the French into a position where they may be willing to acquiesce in Germany's rearmament. France also is being edged toward abrogation of the military clauses of the Versailles treaty. That would certainly be a diplomatic victory for the Nazis.

CORRECT

If it happens, the big three would agree to abrogate the treaty and to recognize Germany's existing armaments, if Germany will disclose the extent to which she has rearmament, promise to abide by a new arms limitation agreement and return to the League.

This will not cause any disarmament, but it will clear the existing situation. All France stands to lose is that she will have to concede recognition of Germany's rearmament, to which she is now playing diplomatically blind.

STAGE HAND

The biggest hush-hush man in government is Archibald Lockhead, a sandy-haired Scot who once flew war airplanes over Flanders. He is one of three men who share the unimpeachable secret of what is being done with the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

Mr. Lockhead sits in a treasury cubbyhole daily, watching three financial news tickers. Whenever the dollar dips or zooms, he lets Mr. Morgenthau know. The only other person on the stabilization fund daily conspiracy is Treasury Undersecretary Coolidge. They will have to deny it, but their chart recently indicated they were short then only $2,000,000 of the $2,000,000,000.

COMPLAINT

A well-known congressional leader for Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers waited down to the White House not long ago and complained he was not being treated right. He said one of his adversaries was a White House favorite.

Mr. Roosevelt demanded proof, whereupon the leader pointed a figurative finger at the presidential associate, Louis Howe. The president said he had known Mr. Howe for many years and never knew him to play favorites and asked who else. The leader then named the vice president. The president laughed and asked why not, in view of the fact that the vice president and the supposed favorite were bosom companions. The laugh ended the matter temporarily.

HEALTH TALKS

MORE LIGHT ON FRESH AIR

The night of January 18, 1935, according to Rosenau, J. A. according to the Britannica, 146 million people of the world were shut in a room about six yards square which had only two small windows on one side. There is only one way of stopping relief and not face the immediate consequences of chaos, and that is to send out the soldiers against the plague and the pestilence of them and get rid of the problem once and for all. Whoever does not favor that move—and who shall dare to suggest it—must admit that the administration is following the only right course in the circumstances. The destitute must be helped, over the long period, even if it hurts. Not to help them would hurt a good deal more in the end.

If we play the game now in this dark hour, our reward is to be certain that we are on the rightward, we know, but we also know that the rightness exalteth a nation. We will come through with all colors flying, not perhaps in the way we expect. But the sun is ahead. Therefore, with our faces toward the sun, courageous forward into 1935!

SALESWOMAN SOUGHT

In $600 Jewel Thefts

Jewelry valued at more than $600 was stolen from four Atlanta homes Tuesday and police are seeking a well-dressed woman, about 35 years of age, for questioning in connection with the thefts.

A $200 platinum dinner ring and a diamond ring valued at $100 were stolen from the home of Mrs. R. Williams, 1444 Allen avenue, S. W., while a $500 platinum bracelet set with a small diamond was taken from the residence of Mrs. F. W. Erwin, 609 Capitol avenue, S. W. Mrs. Erwin Baumer, of 733 Frederick street, N. E., lost jewelry valued at $150, and Alton J. Manning, of 1252 Greengarden street, S. W., lost a ring valued at approximately $100.

In reporting the disappearance of the jewelry from her home, Mrs. Williams said that she and her husband, John, were in the house when the jewelry was stolen. She said that she was alone in the house when the jewelry was stolen. She said that she was alone in the house when the jewelry was stolen.

Just what killed the 123 prisoners has been a subject of speculation ever since. Today a black marble monument marks the site of the Black Hole of Calcutta.

From the description given by one of the survivors:

"By 11 o'clock great numbers were dead or dying, and those living were in an outrageous delirium and others quite unrecognizable. A stevedore now arose from the living and the dead, which most awfully affected those who were still alive. Everybody except those who were in the room, grew outrageous and many delirious."

Years before we knew precisely what "fresh air" and "vitiated air" meant, it was shut in a room about that size with about that many men on a warm summer day. The room apparently had no window or other opening for ventilation. (It was part of the station monkey ship, a frigate). Among us were a few prisoners whose function was to promote anxiety and excitement. Soon their fingers began to faint. Faint convulsions, froth at the mouth, etc., and some of the more impressionable candidates actually fainted or became unconscious. As we learned afterward, the room had been well ventilated from invisible sources.

Crowd 146 men into a space 6 yards square and you will have four men in each square yard. Say the room is nine feet high. Less than a cubic yard of air for each man, man sitting or standing quietly breathes a pint of air at each breath, and takes 16 breaths a minute. Roughly estimating, his cubic yard of air would last him 2 1/2 minutes. Then he'd begin to rebreathe the air, and the increasing proportion of carbon dioxide in it would make him breathe more deeply. At six minutes he would probably be in convulsions and in eight minutes he would die of asphyxia, suffocation, just as though he were drowned.

For years it was thought that some unknown poison emanated from the lungs killed the men who died in the Black Hole. But this theory has been disproved.

Deaths like those in the Black Hole are due not to suffocation, but to heat stroke. Under such conditions the body heat is radiated with difficulty. If the men so confined had known that by fanning the air in from the small window and out through the other small window they could have aided heat radiation, most or all of them might have survived the ordeal.

Body heat is not only radiated into the air but dissipated by evaporation of the

BANKS LEND CITY PAY ROLL MONEY

Non-School Employees To Get First Pay Checks
Since December 20.

Approximately 1,900 non-school employees of the city of Atlanta will receive their first salary checks since December 20 today, following approval by the four clearing house banks of a loan to the city of $99,984.74, based upon the adoption Monday of the city's 1935 finance sheet by city council and its prompt approval by Mayor James L. Key.

Mayor Key, City Comptroller B. Graham West and Councilman C. Aubrey Milam, chairman of council's finance committee, met representatives of the four banks Tuesday morning and arranged for the loan for the mid-January pay roll.

Comptroller West stated after the bank conference that checks for city workers would be ready Wednesday. School employees are paid on the first of each month, hence do not come in the present pay roll which was due last Saturday.

Mr. West also said that at the end of this month the city would take up more than $200,000 in scrip issued to merchants during the first quarter of 1934 for city purchases of supplies. This money will be available out of January revenue, Mr. West said.

Checks for today's pay roll will be the first under the basic salary reduction provided in the new finance sheet. Employees receiving $100 or more per month will find their pay reduced by 15 per cent, while those making less than $100 per month will receive 5 per cent reductions.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package.—(adv.)

U. S. Seeks Postman Same Age as F. D. R.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—A sweeping investigation of the United States postal department began today, not in connection with any criminal act, but to find a mail carrier born on January 30, 1882.

If found, the mail carrier born on that date will have the honor of delivering by air mail to President Roosevelt the world's largest birthday greeting card made by Ernest Dudley Chase, of Winchester.

Although two mail carriers born on January 30 have been found, neither was born the same day and year as the president.

Widespread Ticket Sale Planned For Charity Birthday Balls Here

Every person in Atlanta will be given an opportunity to take part in the nation-wide tribute to President Roosevelt on his birthday and to aid a humanitarian cause by taking part in the two birthday balls that will be held here January 31, it was announced Tuesday by Jackson P. Dick, general chairman.

Mrs. William P. Dunn, president of the Georgia Woman's Democratic Club, chairman of the ticket sales committee, has mapped out an elaborate program that will include active participation in the sale of tickets by nearly all organizations in Atlanta.

Special committees will be organized in civic, social, patriotic and welfare groups to arouse interest in the two balls and solicit enthusiastic support.

The balls will be given at the Piedmont Driving Club and the Capital City Club. All proceeds will go to the work of treating infantile paralysis and research work to develop preventives.

This is the second year that President Roosevelt's birthday has been celebrated by this remarkable nationwide move, and once more Atlanta, as the capital of the president's second home, has been called upon to furnish inspirational leadership.

FULTON TO ELECT COLLECTOR TODAY

Three Candidates in Race
To Succeed Late W. S. Richardson.

Fulton county voters today will elect from a field of three candidates a successor to the late W. S. Richardson, county tax collector, who died on December 24 last.

Candidates for the post are T. Earl Suttles, chief deputy clerk under Mr. Richardson for 10 years and now acting collector; Thomas B. West, attorney, and Jo Johnson, county employee. The election today is to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Richardson which ends December 31, 1936.

There are 34,847 eligible voters in the county. Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries stated Tuesday, no special registration for this election having been held.

City polls, in Atlanta and other county municipalities, will be open from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. while the rural polls will remain open from 8 a. m. to 3 p. m., the ordinary announced.

Jeffries also announced that persons residing in rural districts but engaged in business in Atlanta who cannot vote in their home precincts in the stated hours, can vote in a special polling place installed in the basement of the courthouse and which will be open from 3 to 6 p. m.

The three candidates in last-minute statements urged all voters to go to the polls and expressed the hope there would be a large vote cast.

"Voters generally are interested in the selection of their officials," said Suttles, "and I am expecting a much larger vote than is generally anticipated."

MRS. R. A. DORSEN, SON REPORTED IMPROVING

Mrs. Robert A. Dorsen, wife of the president of J. M. High Company, and their son, Harold Dorsen, injured in an automobile accident January 1, near Melbourne, Fla., were reported "considerably improved" at Piedmont hospital Tuesday where they have been removed by Mr. Dorsen.

Mrs. Dorsen and her son were in a serious condition at a Florida hospital for some time following the accident and were brought to the Piedmont hospital during the week-end.

Mr. Dorsen, who was less seriously injured, has practically recovered from his injuries and has resumed his duties at High's.

INDICTMENT CHARGES
$5,000 DIAMOND THEFT

Charged with obtaining a $5,000 diamond ring and a $20 bill by which officers described as the old "handkerchief trick," Mrs. Nellie Norman, alias Madam Norman, alias Nellie Founds, said to be a fortune teller, was named in an indictment returned by Fulton county grand jury Tuesday charging larceny after trust. The victim of the alleged swindle is Mrs. Fannie M. Dabney, of 1720 Peachtree street.

According to information given the solicitor-general, the woman told Mrs. Dabney that she could bestow great blessings on her if she would let her use a ring and a $20 bill. The ring and money were wrapped in a handkerchief and the victim was told not to open the handkerchief for several days. When it was opened a bone ring and $1 bill were found. The fortune teller is now a fugitive.

Flora Tames and Manuel Garcia, alias Andrew Alonzo, said to be from Detroit, were named in an indictment charging larceny from the house. The couple is charged with taking two suits of clothes from a downtown store.

Several holdup robberies resulted in true bills. T. W. Ricks is named in an indictment charging that he robbed Arthur Peek of $34 and an overcoat December 30. Another bill charges Ricks with robbing Arthur Drake of his hat and $6.50.

C. M. Gaddy was named in an indictment charging the robbery of $150 from J. L. Hawk January 11.

Jeff Bell and H. E. McCoy are named in an indictment charging larceny of the automobile of Fred Paige. County police arrested Bell and McCoy at a Marietta street tourist camp Monday when they dug up several hundred dollars' worth of silver and copper salesman's samples belonging to Paige, whose car was stolen December 20.

A $250 merchandise burglary of Johnny's dry cleaning place January 10 resulted in an indictment naming J. D. Sanders and J. C. Wood.

George Woolfolk and James Bell, negroes, were named in an indictment charging burglary of $300 worth of silverware from the home of W. H. Letton January 3.

JESUP, Ga., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Dozens of old persons poured into Jesup Monday and harassed city and county officials to find out where they could register for an old age pension. Some one, they said, had spread the word around that Monday was the last day to register to get a pension.

After vainly seeking information from various individuals, the applicants were finally convinced that old age pensions are still a matter of talk and not fact.

Kopald-Quinn Solvent, Atlanta Manager Says

Denial of charges that Kopald-Quinn & Company, of Chicago, dealers in securities have been operating a "bucket shop," was made Tuesday by L. Novak, manager of the Atlanta branch of the company. These charges were made by George T. Lewis, of Ocilla, in a petition for receivership of the Atlanta assets of the firm, filed in Fulton superior court Monday, seeking judgment for $2,169.

"Kopald-Quinn & Company is a licensed dealer in securities," said Mr. Novak. "The firm, whose home office is in Chicago, is absolutely solvent and able to pay every legitimate demand made upon it. This petition for receivership is wholly unwarranted and unjustified in fact and we will prove it so at the proper time. Kopald-Quinn & Company has never sold a single share which it did not own or have a contract to purchase and has never sold any securities that it could not deliver. The firm is not indebted to Mr. Lewis in any manner whatever. The statement that we are only licensed in 1935 for the purpose of liquidation is as inaccurate as the other allegations of the petition."

Old-Age Pension Rumor Causes Rush at Jesup

JESUP, Ga., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Dozens of old persons poured into Jesup Monday and harassed city and county officials to find out where they could register for an old age pension. Some one, they said, had spread the word around that Monday was the last day to register to get a pension.

After vainly seeking information from various individuals, the applicants were finally convinced that old age pensions are still a matter of talk and not fact.

What To Do When Baby Has A Cold

At the first sign of a cold, take this precaution. Watch baby's bowels; and if they are temporarily constipated, or if there is sign of excessive acidity, give baby TEETHINA. It so gently coaxes the little bowels to move without a wee bit of strain and flushes out poisonous body waste, thus tending to relieve feverish conditions due to temporary constipation so that natural sleep is more apt to follow. TEETHINA is the nicest, safest little laxative and, of course, it contains no narcotics. Get a package at any drug store for 30c the box of one dozen pleasant tasting powders.

Joe Palmisano Accepts Terms and Signs Cracker Contract

ISHAUWAY PLANTATION, Jan. 22.—It is good and dark and the odor of wood smoke is sweet in the room. And they have just brought in June, the big black fellow with the blind eyes. He feels for his chair and sits down, clutching his guitar.

You would not know he is blind because his eyes look all right only he rolls them about and you know then, looking at him, that he is blind.

And he sings a song and then another and then a lot of songs. But the best one is a simple little song which is mostly the same line repeated over and over. Folk songs have a way of being that way and it seems to make them more effective. It is a song about day breaking and it goes like this, with a lot of plaintive, soft words in it:

Day, oh, day, yonder comes day, day, oh, day, yonder comes day; day's done broke into my soul, yonder comes day.

The song begins to get under your skin because you realize all of a sudden that you do feel that way about day after all. Yonder comes day, coming up over the horizon of the night. And when it breaks it does seem to break into one's soul because at night it is possible to think of all sorts of dark things but the daylight makes things better.

And so, sitting there, in a warm room, with the odor of the wood smoke making the air seem mysterious, you get to humming with June, "Yonder comes day. Day done broke into my soul."

And then when the head is nodding Roy Rogers suggests maybe there is time to get up a fox and so the cars are brought out and Roy Rogers, who manages Ishauway plantation, gets boys to bring out the hounds, trig hounds, and there are long roads into the woods.

But it is too late for the fox because they have all fed and there is a wind and so the strike hounds go whimpering along in the dark, hunting for a trail while the dogs in the trailer yelp mournfully and want to get out.

And so we all go back to bed because Trammell Scott has a dog to run on the morrow and the wind has turned cold and it looks like a bad day.

So you go on back to bed but the song keeps coming in your mind and you wake up the next morning and watch day arrive, thinking to yourself about June and his guitar and the song, "Yonder Comes Day."

AT THE FIELD TRIALS.

It was cold the next morning, which was this morning, and there was a wet misty rain and it was blowing hard when we got to the field trial grounds.

There are a lot of people who do not understand at all why the field trials are exciting and fun. They do not understand why men and women will ride through wind and cold to watch bird dogs work.

I do not think they have ever seen them work or they would understand. Because I have been in picture shows when maybe there was one of Grantland Rice's Sportlight pictures on the screen with hunting dogs in it, and the crowd at the theater always "ohs" and "ahs" at the sight of the dogs pointing.

There is a great sweep to the field trial dogs. I think that is it. There is such a lot of intensity and speed to them and all of a sudden it comes to a frozen halt. It is absolute stillness after furious action.

Because I know that lots of times, just sitting around an office maybe, busy with something else, for no reason at all field trial scenes will pop into the mind. And I can see the same field and recall the pine trees and how they looked and remember, maybe, there was a red bush at one side of the point.

And I have sat around and listened to the old field trial men and they can remember points of 20 years ago made in a field where maybe now there are apartment houses built and no field at all. But they can recall the trees and the grass that were there 20 or maybe more years ago.

So there is something about them. The dogs seem to understand this, too. It is so very important to them to get out there and run and find birds.

FALSE POINTS.

It is perfectly silly, I guess, to go crediting dogs with too much sense, but now and then they do things which seem to indicate they know what's what.

Thomas C. Chubb, the splendid sportsman from Thomasville, who, with his charming wife, is a fixture at the southern amateur, ran his all-age dog in the final braces today. He was Springwood Spider, who placed in the derby two seasons ago.

He found three coveys and two single birds and he pointed and handled well. But he also found an almost equal number of stink birds. I do not know why they call them stink birds, unless it is that the bird dog people want to give them an unpleasant name.

But the false points on the stink birds ruined his chances of finishing in the winners. And when it was done he came in and he tried to shake hands, and he looked so mournful it was very sad to see him, and nothing cheered him up at all.

Sometimes they do things like that. And there is no accounting for it.

THE GREAT DOGS.

The great dogs come only now and then in the field trial game, and their names remain. The veterans in the game recall them. Trammell Scott, who once owned Mike Milligan's Chief, is something of a stranger to the field trial game today, but when he was introduced here some of the veterans said: "Oh, yes, you are the fellow who owned Mike Milligan's Chief."

The dog here which placed second in the all-age stake was Mike Milligan's Chief III, and never have I seen anyone as excited last night as was Trammell Scott. Mike Milligan had run a great heat and had found birds and been steady all the way. He had made one great cast, sweeping to the top of a distant hill and working it out.

"I thought I could see the old dog," said Trammell Scott. "He looked just like the old dog."

The old dog was a great one. Trammell Scott refused $2,500 for him one afternoon. A month later he died. Mike was the favorite to win and his showing had made him so. It was something of a surprise to have him placed second.

AN AMATEUR STAKE.

In their meeting last night when the same officers were re-elected, the southern amateur trial retained the amateur classification. There had been some talk of putting in an open stake.

The southern amateur was organized as an amateur stake for amateur handlers. There is much to be said for an open stake. It would bring better-known dogs here, dogs from the big

ALL-AGE STAKE WON BY C. ROY; POINTERS STAR

Mike Williams' Chief Takes Second Place in Albany Trials.

By Ralph McGill.

ALBANY, Ga., Jan. 22.—C. Roy is his name. The winner of the all-age stake in the southern amateur field trials run here today. He is a brown and white pointer owned by W. C. Potter, New York financier. He is kennelled at the Potter plantation here and was handled by Richard Tift, Albany businessman and president of the Southern Amateur Field Trial Club.

Roy found four coveys of birds. His range was somewhat limited, but the judges awarded him the big silver cup and the blue ribbon for his work on birds.

The pointers swept the field. Second place went to Mike Milligan's Chief, a brown and white pointer owned by Bob Woodruff, of Atlanta, and handled by Trammell Scott, of Atlanta. Mike Milligan showed more range than the winner, casting wide and hunting well. He found one covey of birds.

THIRD PLACE.

Third place went to McKenney's Masterpiece, owned by C. M. McKenney, of Orlando, Fla. He is a beautiful liver and white pointer. The winning pointer is by the famous Seaview Rex and is out of Jake's Stylish Sally. He was bred by Dr. Douglas Head, of Zebulon, Ga., who was here to see the dog win.

The all-age stake was completed this morning with the running of three braces. Uncompleted when Monday's running was done.

The day was in marked contrast with Monday, which was hot and dry. Today was cool and with a wet, cold rain falling through most of the day with pneumonia germs dancing in glee all over the broad acres.

The derby dogs ran today but when day was done the judges were in one of those quandaries and could reach no decision at all. They called back four dogs in a second series.

There were Sealy's Mononey, owned by Bob Sealy, of Panama City, Fla., and Harbor Hills Schoolboy, owned by Enoch Phillips, of Clearwater, Fla., in the first heat.

MCKENNEY'S MIDGET. In the second heat were McKenney's Midget and Great Island Lassie. The former is owned by C. M. McKenney, of Orlando, whose all-age dog won third place. The second is owned by William Ziegler, of New York, who has a plantation here. The pointers were dominant in this selection which does not, however, mean a great deal. The winner may not come from this series. Only Sealy's dog is listed as a setter.

Dr. George Myhrall's setter, Jasper Prince, was the only derby dog to find birds. He was a great derby dog, being one of the big-going gets of the famous sire Roy Kelly.

Dr. Myhrall, one of Atlanta's best-known bird dog owners, had a great dog in the all-age, Watson's Diana, winner of the derby stake here in 1934. But yesterday was hot and dry and the birds flew. Watson's Diana ran well but found no birds. Jasper Prince seems to be one of the sure winners in the derby but that is merely this reporter's idea of it. The judges make the decisions.

The derby will be concluded in the morning with the puppy stakes to follow immediately after.

The trials have been most successful and despite the bad weather today a nice gallery followed.

Petrels Play 'Y' Five Tonight On Luckie Court

Oglethorpe's basketball team will make its first uptown appearance of the season tonight at the Y. M. C. A., meeting the strengthened Petrels in a return game at 8 o'clock.

Johnny Marion, Atlanta boy who plays with Chattanooga in the Southern league, recently joined the Petrels and will play at a guard position tonight. Other Triangle stars will include Virlyn Moore and Johnny Phillips, forwards; Hudson, center, and Pat O'Connell, guard.

Coach Jack Overton will use the same starting lineup that faced Emory & Henry, Virginia champions, in their last meeting. The Petrels will meet in a preliminary game at 7 o'clock. Admission to the double-header is 25 cents per each.

Emory and Henry Beats Petrels, 36-27.

Emory and Henry, state champions of Virginia, featuring a slow-breaking offense, defeated Oglethorpe, 36 to 27, last night on the Chamblee court. The Petrels led Oglethorpe at the half, 21 to 14, but after four minutes of play in the second half Oglethorpe was up even, 26 to 26.

At this point Cecil Moon, Oglethorpe guard, was ejected from the game on personal fouls and Emory and Henry quickly ran up a six-point lead.

Captain Ed Copeland, of Oglethorpe, and Glenn Roberts, of Emory and Henry, rival centers, each scored 12 points. It was quite a showing for the Stormy Petrel center, since Roberts had led the nation in scoring for the past two years.

The Emory and Henry defense stifled in the second half and Oglethorpe was held scoreless after the first four minutes.

STAND AGAINST COURT CLARIFIED BY RUSSELL

Says Tribunal Offers No Service Beyond That Already Available.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Reasons advanced by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, for opposing United States entry into the World Court were said today by Senator Russell, democrat, Georgia, to amplify his own reasons for his announced intention to vote against ratification of the court protocol.

"In the first place," asserted Senator Russell in an interview, "I do not think democrats are bound by the platform to vote for the court under its present interpretation.

"The platform calls for ratification with pending reservations. The recent report of the foreign relations committee reduces the reservations from the status of amendments to mere understandings. France and other nations controlling the court through the League may choose not to have the same understanding we propose."

An understanding, he said, has been reached with the League of Nations in the face of a signed contract.

"Down in Georgia they used to have those contracts on the bottom of which is printed in small type that the buyer of the mule takes him as he stands," he said, in illustrating his point. "If the buyer later discovers the mule is blind he may go into court to protest he was led to understand that the mule was in good condition, but that understanding has no value in the face of those little words on the bottom."

He declared he was opposed to the court for several reasons, that it is afflicted with the League of Nations, that it had the power to give advisory opinions at the request of the League, and that without the League's backing it offered no service beyond that available in the Hague court.

He said he had campaigned for election two years ago with clear statements that he felt he was not bound by the court plank in the national platform.

NO CLUES FOUND

TO SLAIN WOMAN

LAUREL, Miss., Jan. 22.—(AP)—It was definitely established today that the woman whose severed legs were found nearby tied in a sugar sack on a lonely January county road yesterday, died sometime Sunday, but other than that officers were without clues.

The gruesome find was made by a negro hunter just over the Jones county line in a remote section of Jasper county between Heidelberg and Sandersville. The rest of the body was missing.

A medical examination of the well-preserved limbs today disclosed that the woman had been dead "12 or 14 hours" that she weighed approximately 130 pounds and probably was between 35 and 40 years old.

Atlanta Sub-Debs To Attend Washington and Lee Ball

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA will be well represented at the twenty-ninth historic fancy dress ball to be given Friday evening at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va. Those attractive sub-debs, Misses Helen Lowndes, Ann Brumby, Sara Jenkins and Harriett Coley, leave today for Virginia to add their charming presence to the recognized leading social event in southern college circles. The theme of the ball will center around the first imperial ball at the Congress of Vienna, which convened in 1814, and in order to produce this colorful event, Washington and Lee students turned the pages of history back to the post-Napoleonic days. The cost of this year's ball will approximate $6,000, which is a far cry from $42, the cost of the first ball given in 1907.

Doremus gymnasium will be transformed into a replica of one of the famous imperial ballrooms in Vienna. The gymnasium will be draped in scarlet, with tall white columns at one end, through which the dancers will move in the figure march. In this particular figure will be students in authentic costumes, portraying such historic characters as Tallulah, representative of the Bourbon king of France; the Duke and Duchess of Wellington; the czar of Russia; Lord Castlereagh and others.

Helen Lowndes will masquerade in a stunning Russian costume, the coat fashioned of royal blue cloth trimmed with gold braid and brown astrakhan. Gold trousers, a white satin blouse, a wide patent leather belt, high boots, and a Russian headdress will complete the effective costume. Harriett Coley will represent a Russian princess, and will be dressed in white satin trimmed in maribou and worn with white patent leather boots.

Ann Brumby has chosen to represent a Grecian goddess. She will wear white satin with a silver cord encircling her waist, a silver bandeau holding her wavy tresses in place, and silver sandals upon her feet. Red moire trimmed with silver will fashion the costume worn by Sara Jenkins, who will impersonate a member of the court of Peter the Great, of Russia. It was at the prophetic ball during the New Orleans Mardi Gras two years ago that Mrs. Collett Munger, the former Kate Jenkins, masqueraded in this same costume that will be donned by her sister at the Washington and Lee fancy dress ball on January 25.

The fancy dress figure, which will open the dance, will be led by Don Wallis, of Stinesville, Ind., a senior at Washington and Lee, with Miss Isabel Connolly, of Muncie, Ind., student at Indiana University. Mr. Wallis will be costumed as Prince Metetrich, host at the first imperial ball of the congress.

Washington and Lee's fancy dress ball had its inception back in 1907 with a small private ball given by Miss Annie Jo White, then university librarian. Miss White, who still lives in her home on the campus, attends the ball now as an honored guest. Mrs. William K. Jenkins will chaperone the lovely Atlanta belles leaving today for Lexington.

A LOVELY young sub-deb recently received an invitation to the K. D. K. formal dance, which she graciously accepted. A few days later she found in her mail box an invitation to the Phi Delta Theta dance, which she vastly preferred to the first, due, no doubt, to the fact that she was highly flattered at the bid to a grown-up college fraternity dance. This she also accepted.

It so happened that both dances were to occur on the same evening. There was nothing to do but to fall violently ill. Accordingly, another lovely young sub-deb called the K. D. K. to tell him that his date for the dance would not be able to go, that she was so ill, in fact, that no one would be allowed to see her for several days.

The next morning a huge florist's box of roses was delivered to the supposedly ill sub-deb, accompanied by words of sympathy from the K. D. K. All was well until the day of the dances, when a cluster of beautiful orchids arrived from the same ardent swain, the accompanying note explaining that he was so disappointed and not taking her to the dance that he had decided not to go himself, and that he hoped the orchids would make her feel better.

She could not stand it any longer. Rushing to the telephone, she called the very thoughtful young gentleman, told him that she felt much better, and that she would be able to go to his dance. Just what disposition she made of the Phi Delta Theta invitation is still a mystery.

Miss Connolly's "Light in the Mountains," which was a vivid portrayal of the Tallulah Falls school, appeared in Good Housekeeping last July and resulted in the school receiving innumerable Drive Out the Poisons.

When regular bowel movements stop, souring waste matter clogs the bowels and soon begins to poison the entire system. When you feel bad on this account, take Theodor's Black-Draught to get rid of constipation. Refreshing relief follows.

"I take Theodor's Black-Draught for dizziness, headache, bad taste in the mouth, a dull, tired feeling and for any bad feeling that comes from a clogged system," writes Mr. D. M. Minton, of Chickland, Fla. "Soon I am feeling good as new. I only take a dose once in a while."

Miss Power Weds Howard Lamar Chafin.

Characterized by beauty and a marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Power and Howard Lamar Chafin, which was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the home of the bride, on Ponce de Leon avenue. Rev. W. A. Hughes performed the ceremony in the presence of a representative gathering of relatives and friends.

The lower floor of the home was artistically decorated, the altar in the living room being banked with palms and other greenery. A large basket, containing white calla lilies, was the central decoration, on either side of which was a seven-branch candelabra holding unshaded white tapers and cast a soft glow over the wedding party.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. William B. Thogmartin, at the piano, and William A. Hughes sang "I Love You Truly" and "At Dusk." The bride party entered to the strains of Wagner's wedding march, "Lohengrin," and the recessional was the wedding march from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream." During the ceremony "Sweet Mystery of Life" was softly played.

The ribbon-bearers were Charles Hightower and Charlotte Kerr. Mrs. John A. Crawford was her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. She was lovely in a dress of black velvet with gold trimmings. Her hat was a quaint Russian style made of the same material as the dress and a gold cord circled the crown. Her bouquet was tied with yellow satin ribbons of a matching shade. The ring-bearer, Thelma Jo Kerr, wearing a beautiful little frock of pink tulle and carrying the ring in the center of a lily, preceded the bride to the altar.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Joe H. Barnwell. Her blonde beauty was enhanced by her wedding gown of heavenly blue velvet, which was made along princess lines. It had a low neckline, caught in place with rhinestone clips, and long sleeves. The skirt fell in graceful lines to the floor. Her hat was a smart model of blue velvet, made of the same material as the dress, with silver trimmings. She carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. The handkerchief which the bride carried was real lace and was the same carried by her mother at her wedding.

Mrs. C. M. Power, the mother of the bride, wore a green model trimmed in silver metal cloth. Her shoulder bouquet was Joanna Hill roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Janie Chafin, the bridegroom's sister, wore blue satin. Her shoulder spray was of pink rosebuds.

An informal reception followed the wedding ceremony. Centering the bride's table was the three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The bride's book was kept by Miss Marion Power. Those assisting at the reception were Miss Edna and Elsie Power, Jannette Harris, Rotelle Hightower, Ann Lemon and Eugenia Hill.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Harris, West Point, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Boden, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Thogmartin, Mrs. Z. D. Ward and Mrs. Abner Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Mosely and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Turpin, from Stockbridge, Ga.; Miss Janie Chafin and Lester Chafin, from Norman Park, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hargroves, McDonough, Ga.

After a short wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Chafin will be at home at 901 Ponce de Leon avenue.

FINAL INSTALLMENT.

There was something distinctly dismissive in the words. Cannon stood staring for a moment, then turned and entered his own office. He closed the door noisily.

"Well?" Mark again turned to Nan. "How is she?"

"She's waking up. Don't bother her."

"Jean . . . ?"

He bent over her, calling her name softly. The brown eyes fluttered open, closed. "Everything's all right now. I'm taking you home. Lie still."

Jean was in his arms when he rose to his feet.

"If you'll be good enough to ring for the elevator, Miss Gamble . . . That cab should be here by this time."

resignedly. "Listen, kiddies. You shoo yourselves out to the kitchen. The nice man wants to talk secrets with uncle. And close the door, mind you."

"Sit down," Sturges ordered when they were alone. "There are some things I want you to tell me."

"I hate to think what that taxi-meter's doing to you."

"Never mind."

"Just a minute, Mr. Sturges," Nan was serious. "If there is anything you want to know, I think Gorgeous is the one to tell you."

"I don't," he disagreed promptly. "I shall talk with her later. But you are the one who can help me now."

"I'm not sure of that," she said, slowly. "I told you before, I didn't want to see Jean get hurt. . . I still feel that way."

"So do I," he said simply. "Please help me."

"That letter . . ." Mark began. It was not so easy to speak of it with Nan's hazel eyes fixed on him. "I read enough to understand. I dare say it's genuine."

"I think so," Nan commented dryly. "As I figure it, the . . . the gentleman who wrote it was the one who put it in my desk."

"You're uncanny," Miss Gamble complimented him. "Only I have another name for him."

"I was only trying to remember I was addressing a lady," Mark explained with a smile. "But this is what I want to know. How did you find out the letter was there? Why did she try to get it?"

"I can help you with the first one. That rat took the trouble to tell her he was going to plant it."

"I'm beginning to see. And the other question?"

Nan looked at him without replying.

"Well?" he urged.

"I was only wondering if you're really dumb . . . or if you just act that way."

A sudden light dawned in Sturges' face.

"Do you mean she . . . ?" He seemed unable to find the words.

"I mean I'm going home," Nan rose to her feet. "I don't suppose Jean will ever speak to me again. But I'm not so sure I care now."

"Miss Gamble . . . Sturges walked over and laid his hand on her arm. "I wonder if anybody ever told you that you're a . . . a very sweet person."

"Plenty. That's old stuff. You'd better save that line for somebody who'll appreciate it. Can I go now?"

"Yes," he said happily. "But don't ask me to take you."

He strode to the front door, opened it and summoned the cabman. "Take the lady wherever she wants to go. Out of this. A bill changed hands."

"Sure, boss. Thanks a lot."

"You can figure the jam I was in, can't you?" Nan lingered to ask anxiously. "That old buzzard would have had a kid locked up. I hope you can spare me."

"With the buzzard?"

"Act your age! I'm glad I had my chance at him once."

"I have nothing but admiration for him now," Mark admitted. "If it hadn't been for him, I might never have known." He grinned. "I'm not sure I won't go in and kiss him on both cheeks tomorrow."

"Help yourself. Good night."

Sturges' next move was to find his way to the kitchen, where the two small arms were waiting at Nan's command.

"Peggy," he smiled. "I want you to do me a nice favor. Find your mother and ask her if I may speak to her before I go."

Mrs. Sawyer appeared almost at once. "How is Jean?" were Mark's first words.

"She's resting just now. I wouldn't let her talk. Is there something you wish to tell me?"

"I think Jean would prefer to do that. But I wish I might see her for just a minute. I'll promise not to excite her and . . . It really is rather important." He smiled persuasively.

"Well . . . ?" She capitulated with a doubtful shake of her gray head. "Come up with me. You may stay a few minutes."

A moment later she was speaking softly through Jean's door.

"Mr. Sturges, dear. He wants to speak to you."

Without risking a refusal, Mark stepped into the room.

Jean, still dressed, lay on her bed. A light silken robe was thrown across her feet. A shaded lamp on the dressing table gave a faint illumination to the small room, leaving the bed and its occupant in the shadows.

Sturges pulled a chair close to Jean's pillow and seated himself.

"I know I shouldn't be bothering you," he began apologetically. "But I wanted to be sure that you were feeling better."

"All right," said a dull little voice.

"I mustn't stay long," he continued. "Or your nice mother will be chasing me out. I thought perhaps it would relieve your mind if you knew that letter was safe. I have it with me."

He laid the blue envelope at her side.

With a startled move, Jean raised herself on her elbow. She snatched the letter and thrust it under the pillow. The lamplight revealed her face now. Her brown eyes were terror-stricken.

"Then you . . . you didn't read it," she managed.

"I haven't. I did. After all, it was addressed to me. I read enough to make sure that Mr. Cannon didn't want it as badly as he thought."

"Oh . . . ?" It was very nearly a sob. "Can't he drop back on the pillow?"

"And what the letter didn't tell me."

"Nan."

"Yes. Bless her heart."

Jean turned away her face and lay motionless. Mark waited a moment, then leaned nearer to say very gently.

"Are you going to send me away again?"

There was no answer.

"I can't go until I tell you something."

"No, no . . ."

"But I must. I didn't think you could care. I'm telling you. Now I know you do. A little. Tell me you do."

The small room was very still.

"Jean, dear, is my friend. Don't be afraid to tell me. I'll understand."

The red-brown head on the pillow moved almost imperceptibly. Mark translated it as a nod. Very slowly he possessed himself of a small hand, held it firmly.

"Then I may tell you . . . I love you. I love you from the first day. I always will. Please, I will."

Mark slipped his right arm under Jean's shoulders, held her slim body close, forced her very gently to face him.

"Jean . . . ?" He laid his cheek against her tumbled hair. "I love you so. Tell me you care."

An arm crept slowly about his neck, tightened in a desperate little hold. A choking whisper.

"Such heaps . . ."

THE END.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

LIGHTING THE NIGHT.

III—The Torch and the Candle.

A burning stick lifted from a bonfire was very likely the first torch; but as time went on, men learned to make torches of other kinds.

We have some reason to say that the candle grew out of the torch. Splinters of wood, or pieces of reed, were placed in the point of wax or fat meat; and formed what we might call "torch candles."

Twenty-five hundred years ago, Phoenician traders had wax candles among their wares. We are not certain that the wax was taken from honeycombs of bees; it may have been a waxy product of certain plants.

Greeks, Hebrews, Romans and other people made use of candles, as well as the crude oil lamps without chimneys which we have described.

During the Middle Ages, the use of candles was widespread in western Europe; and the trade of the chandler, or candle-maker, grew important.

Sometimes chandlers went from house to house, and made tallow candles with the aid of their customers.

A thread, or wick, was dipped in fresh-melted tallow, and was raised to let the tallow cool and harden. Then there was another dipping, cooling and hardening. This was kept up until the candle was thick enough.

Tallow is taken from the fat of certain animals, chiefly cattle and sheep; and there is a "tallow tree" as well.

Present-day candles are composed for the most part of paraffin or stearin; but some are still made of tallow or beeswax.

Mrs. George McKee, a native of France, will impersonate the celebrated Lucienne Boyer, at the colorful movie ball to be given on Friday evening, January 25, at the Piedmont Driving Club under the sponsorship of the Service Group. Lucienne Boyer is the famous, attractive young woman who recently visited New York, and entranced her audience with her wonderful interpretation of French songs.

A history of the Service Group sponsoring the ball to raise funds to support worthy dependents will interest the reading public, and will create the desire to purchase tickets at $2.50 per couple to help swell the coffers for this worthy purpose. In Atlanta on December 13, 1932, at a social gathering at the home of Mrs. Edward H. Inman, Mesdames Howard Bucknell, John W. Goddard, William P. Hill and Mrs. Inman, in discussing the approaching Christmas season and the need of helping the underprivileged, where other friends had been asked to join the original group. The needy ones adopted were supplied not only with the necessities of life but many of the joys of Christmas.

Later, the donors, then called Opportunity No. 4, asked others to join them at a meeting held at the Piedmont Driving Club on January 19, 1933, for the purpose of organizing on a larger scale. At this meeting the following officers were elected: Chairman, Mrs. Howard Bucknell; co-chairman, Mrs. Charles Conklin; secretary, Mrs. Dudley Cowles; and treasurer, Mrs. James D. Robinson. It was thought advisable to change the name of the group to something more comprehensive than the one already chosen.

At the February meeting the name of Relief Service Group was decided upon, the sole purpose of this organization to be the care of the needy—all aid to be rendered through the agency of the Family Welfare Society with the ultimate goal of rehabilitating and strengthening the morale of those assisted. An active campaign for additional members was urged, and so diligently carried through that by the end of the year 1933 the membership of the group was between sixty and seventy. In addition to the monthly dues, money had been raised through the medium of card parties, teas and rummage sales. Two families were being cared for by the group, the needy mother with six children who were found to be in a destitute condition, the father ill and out of work through no fault of his own. Two boys found wandering the streets and fast becoming criminals were put into foster homes, where their needs—physical, mental and spiritual—were carefully watched. In January, 1934, the following officers were elected: Chairman, Mrs. Evelyn Harlan; co-chairman, Mrs. Charles Conklin and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox; recording secretary, Mrs. Henry B. Scott; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert C. Alden; and treasurer, Mrs. R. George McCall.

A project was presented to the group, that of opening a shop in which articles donated and also articles sent on consignment would be sold. This plan met with enthusiastic approval. One generous member gave the use of a store at 440 West Peachtree street, and another, equally generous, offered to finance the project until it became self-supporting. This shop, called "The Omnibus," has been operating ever since, the members of the group giving their services and fostering the success of the project in every possible way. This shop has proved to be of great benefit, not only in raising funds for the needy, but also as a medium through which the surplus belongings of many homes have been disposed of to the advantage of both buyer and seller.

Had 100 Members. By the end of the year 1934, Relief Service Group had approximately 100 members, with their scope of work among the needy increased. The families cared for were as follows: The family of Mrs. J. D. Robinson, who had been abandoned by her mother and six children who by this time had been rehabilitated to the extent they needed no further financial assistance. The new family consisted of a mother who had been deserted by her husband and left with three little children. The group undertook their support and sent the mother of Opportunity school to be taught fine sewing, for which she had an aptitude. In April, 1934, a needy mother with three little boys was added to the group's dependents. In June a family consisting of a mother, father and two daughters in dire need was brought to the attention of the group, who aided them for four months, at the expiration of which time they were no longer in need of

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—

United States government bonds in broad demand in today's listed market and several treasury issues established new 1934-35 highs. Corporate bonds were active, but prices were fairly well maintained.

Resumption of the advance in treasury bonds, interrupted somewhat by apprehension over outcome of the gold clause cases now before the supreme court, was accompanied by reports a number of life insurance companies and other large investors had entered the market again and were especially interested in the shorter term loans.

Corporate bonds were less uniform in price movements than the federal, although a few standard investments went through their old highs, including Armour & Co. 5 1/2s, up 7-8 at 104-1/2; Bell Telephone 5s, up 7-8 at 119; and Norfolk & Western 4s, up 1-2 at 112.

Some of the active railroad issues sold fractionally lower, including obligations of the Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago Union Station, Delaware & Hudson and Union Pacific. The Associated Press average for 20 railroads was .12 of a point lower at 86.88, while that for 12 industrials was .12 of a point higher at 85.45, and that for 10 low-yield bonds advanced .05 of a point to a new 1934-35 high at 108.65.

In the lower-priced group, advances up to a point were shown by obligations of International Telephone

Postal, Bush Terminal 5s and 3-5s points higher at 45-58.

The foreign section was quiet and featureless.

Transfers in all departments aggregated $13,429,000, par value, compared with $11,575,000 on Monday.

Band of 200 Nomad Slayers Sought in African Hinterland

DJIBOUTI, French North Africa, Jan. 22.—(UP)—French officers led 200 native militia and special police details into the African hinterland today in pursuit of 200 nomads who massacred 97 persons on the Abyssinian frontier, including the French administrator, M. Bernard.

Official advisers said the tribesmen murdered Bernard and then fell upon nomadic tribes and members of the Italian tribe. They slew 16 militiamen and 80 natives before withdrawing with their loot.

The nomads were believed of the Assamara tribe which in the past month has attacked two British outposts and caused clashes with Italian troops on the Italian-Somali border. Italy has threatened war on Abyssinia, believed guilty of the outbursts.

The Assamara tribe comprises several thousand fierce Arabs who move about constantly, searching for grass for their small herds of lean camels, sheep and cattle. They are among the few wholly unconquered desert tribes, refusing to submit either to European rule or the Abyssinian throne. The men spend their lives fighting all police and troop forces, indiscriminately, their herds moving in and out of French, Italian and British Somali and Abyssinian territory.

Honesty Forces City To Pay Bill—Ruling
NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The city of Bay St. Louis, Miss., must pay $7,000 balance due the Independent Paving Company, of Birmingham, on a paving contract because "common honesty" impels it to do so, the United States circuit court of appeals ruled today.

Reversing the federal district court of Biloxi, which had sustained the city's contention that it was not legally required to pay because of a technicality imposed by state law, the courts of appeals observed that though the contract may have been irregularly entered into, the city "is not without power to be influenced by the dictates of common honesty to pay for completed work done in accordance with the terms of the contract and approved and accepted by it."

State law required adoption of an ordinance for entering into any contract where an amount in excess of $500 was involved. This law was admittedly not complied with, though the city had contracted for the paving, and accepted the completed job.

War's Profits, Causes Share Capital Stage

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—War, its profits, causes and ramifications today claimed senate attention and engrossed a conference which had before it proposals for the cure of conflict between nations.

The senate debated World Court adherence while a feminine conference on the cause and cure of war, meeting downtown, organized a campaign for ratification of the resolution which would make America a member of the tribunal.

The senate munitions committee went ahead meantime with its investigations, inquiring, while shipbuilding company officials were on the stand, into wartime cost-plus contracts.

Under these the United States paid all expenses of a contract and a certain percentage more.

Stephen H. Rauschenbush, committee investigator, said the one cost-plus plan included an arrangement whereby the government agreed to pay one-half of all overhead items. He added that shipbuilding companies tried to make the government pay on such items as "dividends," "expenses for parties" and "income taxes."

Huey, in Seclusion, Mystifies Louisiana
BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Huey Long has hied home and hidden.

Some new trouble in his dictatorship sent him back from congress—nobody knows just what. He was still keeping himself incommunicado in his hotel suite tonight.

He had left the rooms in 24 hours. Bodyguards kept reporters at a distance and the Kingfish refused to answer his telephone.

There were enough rumors to satisfy everybody interested in why he came back. Some said it meant an organizing in military formation to fight him. Others said he came back to conduct a public service commission hearing Thursday, when lower telephone rates would be demanded. One guess was as good as another, so far as the Kingfish was concerned.

Pan-American Airway To Open Pacific Route
NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(UP)—President J. T. Trippe, of Pan-American Airways, tonight confirmed that the American Airway has arranged to lease Alameda airport as a temporary terminal for the San Francisco bay area in connection with plans for early establishment of the air line to the Orient, Trippe said. The lease is subject to approval of the Alameda city council, which should act upon it within a few days.

Twenty per cent stronger than T. N. T., the new stuff has been shot at with rifles, thrown into fires, bored with red-hot irons, subjected to blow torches and beaten with 50-pound trip-hammers without exploding.

The only thing that detonates it is a full-size dynamite cartridge. The strongest commercial blasting cap, the announcement states, have failed to explode into nitro ammonia.

It is called "ultimate in safety." It is free even from the headaches which dynamite causes among explosives handlers.

The stuff is a white solid. It resembles table salt cake hard, and is about the same weight. It works under water as well as in air, and does not freeze.

OIL FRAUD CHARGES DISMISSED AGAINST 23
OKLAHOMA, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The federal government today wiped the C. C. Julian Oil & Royal mail fraud case from its criminal slate by dismissing charges against the remaining 23 defendants.

United States District Attorney W. C. Lewis said many of the defendants have not been apprehended and would cost the government too much money to try the few left in the case, whom he classified as secondary defendants.

American Denies Role As King Zog's Cupid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—One of the season's best stories was spoiled today when Charles C. Hart, former minister to Albania, denied he had acted as a "diplomatic cupid" in an attempt to find King Zog an American bride with a $1,000,000 a year income.

Zog, the world's only bachelor sovereign, sought Hart's assistance—Vienna dispatches said—in finding an American girl with beauty, ability and a hefty annual income.

Hart was reported to have surveyed the field here and then to have given Zog a list of Yankee dollar princesses.

A former newspaperman, Hart said in a statement that the Albanian ruler never had made such a request of him, that he had no survey of the marriage market here, and that he had never seen a list of marriageable millionairesses to the king.
